About Me

I took up silat in 2006 as a hobby that I could enjoy during my weekends. However, after I competed in the National Championships in 2007, I became more interested and decided to go for the Singapore Sports School selection.

As an athlete, I draw much inspiration from Muhammad Ali. I feel that he's a complete fighter. He was very committed to boxing and always did better than the others in training. He is confident every time in the ring and is always eager to win. He proved that everyone can overcome insurmountable odds. In other words, he made fighters out of us all.

About Me

When I was 10 years old, my mum sent me for silat class to lose weight because I was fat. From that one opportunity, it has brought me here, representing Singapore in major games and striving for greatness for my country.

In life, my dad inspires me for his perseverance and dedication towards the family. It is my hope to follow in his footsteps.

About Me

I picked up silat through the encouragement of my family. I am proud to be in Team Singapore because it has always been my dream to represent Singapore in these prestigious events.

My role model in silat is Zulfakar. He inspires me as he is the top athlete in silat, winning many medals for Singapore and I want to be just like him.

About Me

When my sister Saiedah Said won the World Championships in 2004, it spurred me to join the Singa Silat program. My family inspires me daily in my journey as an athlete as some of them have achieved Gold for various SEA Games and won glory for the nation and for my family by becoming World Champion.

About Me

I started silat at the age of six. It was my circle of friends that recommended me to try out this artistic yet gruelling sport.

Whenever I get to compete for Singapore in major games, I will remember the people in my life who have inspired me and brought me here, such as my coaches. They put me through tough training so I can learn to give 100% and more during competitions.
