The Singapore Spirit embodies the development of our nation through the efforts of our citizens and foreign talents collectively. As a national athlete, this notion is manifested through the active support we receive from our National Sports Association, the Singapore Sports Council, our loved ones, our employers and fellow Singaporeans in order to develop Singapore into a prominent sporting nation.

About Me

Freestyle wrestling was introduced to me by my fellow teammate, Gabriel Huang in 2010. He invited me for a session at our training centre and I was hooked immediately. Having trained in other forms of combat arts, the art of wrestling was what captivated me the most. Under the tutelage of two-time Olympic Champion, Coach Sergei, I learnt the intricacies of the art of wrestling and the dedication to be successful. Training excites me as I learn something new everyday. I see myself being involved in the development of the sport even after I retire from competition.

About Me

I picked up wrestling in 2009 when my judo coach introduced it to me. I've been doing judo since I was 12 and I excelled in it as well, winning many medals. Since judo and wrestling are much alike, I thought to myself, why not give it a try? I've loved the sport ever since.

“

The Singapore Spirit is striving to excel despite odds. We're a small country with odds against us, but we will still strive hard to excel in both sports and academics.

About Me

My coach, Sergei Beloglazov is my inspiration in this sport. Wrestling is a really tough sport where only the cream of the crop (one person per weight class) gets to represent the entire country. My coach has not only represented his country in the best possible way (by winning the World Championships six times and Olympics twice!), but also the entire sport, by striving to become the best in both sports and life. He always reminds us that wrestling is about dedication and discipline and makes sure we balance both sports and studies.
